

Preface

This work is offered to the profession as a general Repertory of the Homoeopathic Materia Medica. It has been built from all sources, and is a compilation of all the useful symptoms recorded in the fundamental works of our Materia Medica, as well as from the notes of our ablest practitioners. Many unverified symptoms have been omitted, but only when there was a decided doubt about their consistency. And on the other hand clinical matters have been given a place when it was observed to be consistent with the nature of the remedy.

The plan of the Repertory is uniform throughout, and it is one which admits of the indefinite expansion of each division, so that remedies can be added from time to time as they come into use or have been confirmed and verified. It has been attempted to proceed in every case from generals to particulars, and in carrying this out the aim has been to give first of all a general rubric containing all the remedies which have produced the symptoms, followed by the particulars, viz. the time of occurrence, the circumstances, and lastly the extensions. Here it may be remarked, in regard to extensions, that the point from which a certain symptom extends is the one under which that symptom will be found, never under the point to which it extends.

As is well known to older practitioners, the method of working out a case from generals to particulars is the most satisfactory. If a case is worked out merely from particulars it is more than probable that the remedy will not be seen, and frequent failure will be the result. This is due to the fact that the particular directions in which the remedies in the general rubric tend have not yet been observed, and thus to depend upon a small group of remedies relating to some particular symptom is to shut out other remedies which may have that symptom, although not yet observed.

By working in the other direction, however, i.e., from general to particular, the general rubric will include all remedies that are related to the symptoms, and, if after having done this the particulars are then gone into and the remedy which runs through the general rubrics is found to have the particular symptoms, this will aid in its choice as the one to be prescribed. One object, then, of this Repertory has been to assist in obtaining good general groups of remedies, and by general groups and rubrics it is not to be understood as the general of the remedies. When pathological names are used, only the leading remedies in the condition referred to will be found in the rubric.

To those who have used Bœnninghausen's "Therapeutic Pocket Book" the working out of cases from generals is a familiar method. But for the benefit of the younger men the following suggestions are offered which may prove helpful: After taking the case according to the lines laid down in the "Organon" (§§ 83-140), write out all the mental symptoms and all symptoms and conditions predicated of the patient himself and search the Repertory for symptoms that correspond to these. Then search for such physical symptoms as are predicated of the blood, colour of discharge, and bodily aggravation and amelioration that include the whole being, as well as desire for open air, desire for heat, cold air, for rest, for motion which may be only a desire or may bring a general feeling of amelioration. It should be understood that a circumstance that makes the whole being feel better or worse is of much greater importance than when the same circumstance only affects the painful part, and these are often quite opposite. Then individualize still further, using the symptoms predicated of the organs, functions and sensations, always giving an important place to the time of occurrence of every symptom until every detail has been examined. Then examine the symptom picture collectively and individually, and lastly study the Materia Medica of such remedy or remedies as run through the symptoms of the case until there is no doubt about which is the most similar of all remedies.

Cross references have been inserted wherever it was thought they would be needed, but doubtless more could profitably be added. Many busy men will find groups of remedies under headings different from the one they would naturally look for. If a cross reference be made at the time it would always help to find that rubric in the future, and if all such cross references be sent to the author they will assist in making later editions more complete. Physicians are requested to send in verified and clinical symptoms, and to call attention to any errors which they may discover in the text. Only in this way can we expect to have a complete and correct repertory. It is suggested that those who use this Repertory should first of all read the headings of the general rubrics from the beginning to the end and thus become acquainted with the plan upon which it is formed. Only by constant use can any repertory become a companion and a helper.

James Tyler Kent

Use of the Repertory

As homœopathy includes both science and art, Repertory study must consist of science and art.

The scientific method is the mechanical method ; taking all the symptoms and writing out all the associated remedies with gradings, making a summary with grades marked, at the end.

There is an artistic method that omits the mechanical, and is better, but all are not prepared to use it. The artistic method demands that judgment be passed on all the symptoms, after the case is most carefully taken. The symptoms must be judged as to their value as characteristics, in relation to the patient ; they must be passed in review by the rational mind to determine those which are strange, rare, and peculiar.

Symptoms most peculiar to the patient must be taken first, then those less and less peculiar until the symptoms that are common and not peculiar are reached, in order, from first to last.

These must be valued in proportion as they relate to the patient rather than to his parts, and used instead of ultimates and symptoms pathognomonic.

Symptoms to be taken :

First - are those relating to the loves and hates, or desires and aversions.

Next - are those belonging to the rational mind, so-called intellectual mind.

Thirdly - those belonging to the memory.

These, the mental symptoms, must first be worked out by the usual form until the remedies best suited to his mental condition are determined, omitting all symptoms that relate to a pathological cause and all that are common to disease and to people. When the sum of these has been settled, a group of five or ten remedies, or as many as appear, we are then prepared to compare them and the remedies found related to the remaining symptoms of the case.

The symptoms that are next most important are those related to the entire man and his entire body, or his blood and fluids : as sensitiveness to heat, to cold, to storm, to rest, to night, to day, to time. They include both symptoms and modalities.

As many as these as are found, also, in the first group, the mental summary, are to be retained.

There is no need of writing out the remedies not in the mental group or summary ; these symptoms, relating to the whole patient, cannot be omitted with any hope of success.

We must next look over all the record to ascertain which of that group are most similar to the particulars of the regions of the body ; of the organs of the body ; of the parts ; and of the extremities.

Preference must be accorded to discharges from ulcers, from uterus during menstruation, from ears, and from other parts, as those are very closely related to the vital operation of the economy.

Next must be used the modalities of the parts affected, and frequently these will be found to be the very opposite of the modalities of the patient himself. A patient who craves heat for himself, generally, and for his body, may require cold to his head, to his stomach, or to the inflamed parts, hence the same rubric will not fit him and his parts. Hence to generalize by modalities of isolated particulars leads to the incorrect remedy or confounds values placed upon certain remedies.

There are strange and rare symptoms, even in parts of the body, which the experienced physician learns are so guiding that they must be ranked in the higher and first classes.

These include some keynotes which may guide safely to a remedy or to the shaping of results, provided that the mental and the physical generals do not stand contrary, as to their modalities, and therefore oppose the keynote-symptoms.

Any remedy correctly worked out, when looked up in the Materia Medica, should be perceived to agree with, and to fit, the patient ; his symptoms ; his parts ; and his modalities. It is quite possible for a remedy not having the highest marking in the anemnesis to be the most similar in image, as seen in the Materia Medica.

The artistic prescriber sees much in the proving that cannot be retained in the Repertory, where everything must be sacrificed for the alphabetical system. The artistic prescriber must study Materia Medica long and earnestly to enable him to fix in his mind sick images, which, when needed, will infill the sick personalities of human beings. These are too numerous and too various to be named or classified. I have often known the intuitive prescriber to attempt to explain a so-called marvellous cure by saying : "I cannot quite say how I came to give that remedy but it resembled him."

We have heard this, and felt it, and seen it, but who can attempt to explain it ? It is something that belongs not to the neophyte, but comes gradually to the experienced artistic prescriber. It is only the growth of art in the artistic mind : what is noticed in all artists. It belongs to all healing artists, but if carried too far it becomes a fatal mistake, and must therefore be corrected by Repertory work done in even the most mechanical manner.

The more each one restrains the tendency to carelessness in prescribing and in method, the wiser he becomes in artistic effects and Materia Medica work. The two features of prescribing must go hand in hand, and must be kept in a high degree of balance, or loose methods and habits will come upon any good worker.

HOW TO STUDY THE REPERTORY

After all the symptoms of a patient have been written out the Repertory should be taken up. The beginner should not attempt to abbreviate the anemnesis, but should write out the full general rubric for exercise, if nothing more. If melancholy be the word, the remedies set to the word should be written down with all the graduations. If the melancholy appear only before the menses let a sub-rubric be placed in manner to show at a glance the number of remedies of the general class having the special period of aggravation. Many of the most brilliant cures are made from the general rubric when the special does not help, and, in careful notes of ten years, would bring down many of the general rubric symptoms, and furnish the best of clinical verifications. The longer this is done the more can the busy doctor abbreviate his case-notes.

The special aggravation is a great help, but such observations are often wanting, and the general rubric must be pressed into service.

Again, we have to work by analogy. In this method Bœnninghausen's Pocket Repertory is of the greatest service.

Take Minton's most excellent work, and we find menstrual agonies are ameliorated by heat, peculiar to Ars. and Nux., and by moist heat, to Nux-m. But the symptoms of one case are not like either of these remedies, and we must go farther into the Materia Medica. We can there form the anemnesis by analogy and make use of the general rubric, taking all the remedies known to be generally ameliorated by heat and warmth applied.

To be methodical, the general rubric should appear in the notes of the prescriber and the special below it. If this plan be carefully carried out, a comparison of ten years' work be a most instructive perusal. What is true of a remedy generally may often be true in particular, especially so in the absence of a contra-indicating exception, well established.

If this plan be followed by beginners, always reading up the Materia Medica with the anamnesis by the time business becomes plenty the work becomes easy and rapid. A young man can prescribe for a few patients a day and make careful homœopathic cures, and he can gain speed enough to prescribe for twenty or thirty a day after a few years. Any man who desires to avoid this careful method, should not pretend to be a homœopathic physician, as the right way is not in him, as the desire must precede the act.

The patient does not always express the symptom in the language that would best indicate the real nature of the symptom. Then it is that judgment is required, that the physician may gain a correct appreciation of the symptoms. So often is this true that the young man and often the old are led from the true expressions of nature, and he will make an inappropriate prescription. The task of taking symptoms is often a most difficult one. It is sometimes possible to abbreviate the anemnesis by selecting one symptom that is very peculiar containing the key to the case. A young man cannot often detect this peculiarity, and he should seldom attempt it. It is often convenient to abbreviate by taking a group of three or four essentials in a given case, making a summary of these, and eliminating all remedies not found in all the essential symptoms. A man with considerable experience may cut short the work in this way. I have frequently known young men to mistake a modality for a symptom. This is fatal to a correct result. The symptom is the sensation or condition, and the modality is only a modification. The symptom often becomes peculiar or characteristic through its modality.

When a sensation is looking up in the Repertory, all the remedies belonging to it should be written out, and individualization began by modalities.

I am frequently asked what is understood by peculiar as applied to a case. A little thought should lead each man to the solution.

A high temperature, a fever without thirst, is in a measure peculiar. A hard chill with thirst for cold water is peculiar. Thirst with a fever, with the heat, is not peculiar, because you can safely say it is common to find heat with thirst, and uncommon to find heat without thirst. That which is common to any given disease is never peculiar. This may seem too simple to demand an explanation, but let him who knows it go to the next page. Pathognomonic symptoms are not used to individualize by, and are never peculiar in the sense asked for.

I am asked what I mean when I say to beginners, treat the patient and not the disease. My answer always is about as follows : the symptom that is seldom found in a given disease is one not peculiar to the disease, but peculiar to the patient, therefore the peculiarities of the patient have made the disease differ from all the members of its class and from all others in the class, and make this disease, as affecting this patient, an individuality by itself, and can only be treated as an individual. This individuality in the patient manifests itself by peculiar symptoms nearly always prominent, and always looked for by the true healer. The man who gives Acon. for fever knows nothing of the spirit of the law or the duties of the physician. The same is true of Colocynth for colic, Arsenicum for chill, etc.

"What shall we do when we find several peculiarities in the same patient and one remedy does not cover them all ?" Here is where the astute physician will pick up his Repertory and commence the search for a remedy most similar to all, and if he has been a student for a few years he need not go about asking foolish questions. The lazy man has spent his days in the folly of pleasures, and the man of limited belief has shot out so many valuable things that he is constantly up in public asking foolish questions and reporting cases with symptoms so badly taken that he reveals the whereabouts of his past life. He has not made use of the Repertory, and shows a complete ignorance of the rubrics and the usual formality of taking symptoms as taught by Hahnemann. It is a blessed thing that they are not responsible for all their ignorance. Where shall the responsibility rest, and who shall "throw the first stone ?"

It is so easy to wink at the sins that we ourselves are guilty of that it seems impossible to find judge or jury before whom to arraign the first law-breaker.

The cry for liberty has been a grievous error, as liberty is and has been most shamefully abused. It means a licence to violate law, and only a modest elasticity is necessary and full eclecticism is the product. It is liberty that has driven out of use, or limited the use, of the Repertory that all the old healers so much consulted. If Bœnninghausen used a Repertory with the limited remedies there proved, how much more do we need to consult it.

HOW TO USE THE REPERTORY

Ever since the appearance of my Repertory in print many of my friends who use it have urged me to write out my own method of using a Repertory. I realize that it is a most difficult undertaking, but shall attempt to explain my method. I doubt not but most careful prescribers will find that they are working in a similar manner.

The use of the Repertory in homœopathic practice is a necessity if one is to do careful work. Our Materia Medica is so cumbersome without a Repertory that the best prescriber must meet with only indifferent results.

After the case has been properly taken according to Hahnemann's rules it is ready for study. I do not intend to offer in this manner the ordinary rubrics, because all know them so well. A case that is well taken and ordinarily full will show morbid manifestations in sensitiveness to many surroundings, such as weather, heat and cold, also in the desires and aversions, mental symptoms and the various regions of the body.

When I take up a full case for study, I single out all the expressions that describe the general state, such as the aggravations and ameliorations of the general state of the patient or of many of his symptoms. I next consider carefully all his longings, mental and physical, all the desires and aversions, antipathies, fears, dreads, etc. Next I look for all the intellectual perversions, methods of reasoning, memory, causes of mental disturbances, etc. All these I arrange in form together, in order to set opposite each one all remedies in corresponding rubrics as found in the Repertory. By the cancellation process it will soon be seen that only a few remedies run through all these symptoms, and therefore only a few are to be carefully compared in order to ascertain which one of all these is most like the particular symptoms not yet lined up to be considered as the first ones have been considered. Hahnemann teaches in the 153rd paragraph that we are to give particular attention to such symptoms as are peculiar and characteristic. He teaches also that the physician must pay his earnest attention to the patient. Now if these two things are duly considered, it will be seen that Hahnemann's idea was that a characteristic symptom is one that is not common to disease but one that characterizes the patient. All the first lot of symptoms singled out for a more comprehensive view are such, as characterize the patient, and are predicated of the patient himself. By treating a portion of the symptoms in this way we have reduced the list of possible remedies to a few or perhaps only one. As it is necessary to consider the totality of the symptoms for a basis of the homœopathic prescription, it is now necessary to examine all the rest of the symptoms in order to ascertain how these few remedies correspond with all the particulars.

It may be said that the above is only routine work and everybody does it just that way. True, but after so much has been accepted the more intricate problems come up. To work out a well-rounded case is the simplest part of Repertory work, but when one-sided cases appear and when the patient states his symptoms in language that cannot be found in provings the case is far different. The record of the patient should stand as nearly as possible in his own language. From an extensive correspondence and many years of teaching graduates, I have come to the conclusion that it is a difficult matter for many to know when the record of symptoms contains the possibilities of a curative prescription. Many cases are presented with no generals and no mental symptoms - absolutely no characterizing symptoms - only the symptoms common to sickness. When a successful prescription is made on such symptoms it is scarcely more than a "lucky hit". It cannot be classed as scientific prescribing. Many records are presented with pages of vague description and one keynote that has served as a disgraceful "stool pigeon" to call forth a failure from many doctors.

Unless the symptoms that characterize the patient are brought out in the record the physician should not be surprised at a failure. The remedy must be similar to the symptoms of the patient as well as the pathognomonic symptoms of his disease in order to cure. To show something about the requirements of Repertory work, I will try to bring out hypothetical groups of symptoms such as come to every man. In a well-rounded case, or as an isolated group, we frequently meet with what is called "writer's cramp". This must be divided into many elements before it can be properly put on paper as a work-out case or fragment of a case. If we should take "writer's cramp" and say no more about it, we would have only a limited number of remedies to look to for cure. But our resources are unlimited, as well be seen. "Writer's cramp", when examined into, will be found to mean cramp in fingers, hand or arms, or all three. Sometimes numbness and tingling of one or all three ; sometimes sensation of paralysis in one or all three ; sometimes tingling of fingers and hand, and all of these conditions from writing or worse while writing.

Cramp in fingers while writing : Brach., Cocc., Cycl., Trill., Mag-ph., Stann.

Cramp in hand while writing : Anac., Euph., Mag-p., Nat-p., Sil.

Numbness in fingers while writing : Carl.

Numbness in hand while writing : Agar., Zinc.

Paralytic feeling in hand while writing : Acon., Agar., Chel., Cocc.

Cramp in wrist while writing : Amyl-n., Brach.

The above brings out all that can be found in the Materia Medica on this subject, and failure often follows owing to the scanty clinical and pathogenetic records to which we have access ; but we have just begun to consider that vexatious group of symptoms. It is true that sometimes the above scanty showing presents just the remedy required. But oftener it does not, and then we may proceed as follows :

Cramp in the fingers, hand and wrist or such parts as are affected : use the general groups on pages 971, 972 & 973 of my Repertory.

Numbness of fingers and hand : pages 1038 and 1039, using also the general group.

Sensation of paralysis of hands and fingers : use the general groups, pages 1176 and 1179.

After these have been carefully written out, turn to the general rubric in Generalities, on page 1358, "Exertion", and write out such of these remedies as are found in the complex symptoms from exertion. Writing is nothing else but prolonged exertion. When this simple lesson is learned the physician will see at once that the same process will show the remedy in those who have lost the power of the hand and fingers, or have cramps, etc., from playing stringed instruments or playing the piano or the prolonged use of any tool or instrument. It is using in proper manner a general rubric.

Furthermore, after cures have been made with remedies selected in this way, such remedies may be added to the scanty list of particulars first referred to, and in this manner will our Repertory grow into usefulness. This is the legitimate use of clinical symptoms. It is the proper application of the general rubric to the end that our scanty particulars may be built up. The new Repertory is the only one ever found that provides a vacant space for annotating just such information. If the large number of correct prescribers in the world would join in this extension, we could soon have a Repertory of comparatively extensive particulars. Our generals were well worked out by Bœnninghausen and much overdone, as he generalized many rubrics that were purely particulars, the use of which as generals is misleading and ends in failure. The success coming from Bœnninghausen's Pocket-book is due to the arrangement whereby generals can be quickly made use of to furnish modalities for individual symptoms, whether general or particular. This feature is preserved in my Repertory, as all know who use it. But it is the generals that can be used this way. A large rubric made up of promiscuous particulars, none of which are predicated of the patient is a "hit or miss" when applied in general and usually a miss. For example, "aggravation from writing" is a rubric of particulars. In no instance is there one wherein the patient himself is worse from writing, but the eyes, the head, the hands, the back (from stooping), etc., make up this rubric. It is useless to resort to aggravation from writing when a headache is the symptom and find the remedy refers to a complaint in some other part wholly unlike headache. To make use of this modality for mental symptoms when it is applied to complaints of the hand is perverting the uses of circumstances. Aggravation from writing should be limited to the symptoms that are worse from writing and kept with them, as it is not a general. It is so done in my Repertory. This is wholly different in the great rubric "motion". If we study Bryonia from that rubric, and from the Materia Medica, we will see that such a large number of particular symptoms is aggravated by that remedy that it appears that the very patient himself is worse from motion.

Hence, it will be seen that motion is a rubric that must show the extent of aggravation in relation to the general bodily state by general and particular, and it must be retained in the generals. Any rubric that modifies so many particulars that the very patient himself seems to be so modified must be classed as general. Many wonderful cures have been made from the use of Bœnninghausen and many wonderful failures have followed, and it is from the above cause. The new Repertory is produced to show forth all the particulars, each symptom with the circumstance connected with it. It is in infancy and may remain so very long, unless all who use it unite to preserve their experience in well-kept records and furnish the author with such. The author is devoting his life to the growth and infilling and perfecting of this work, and begs all true workers will co-operate by noting errors and omissions, and, above all, noting such modalities of particulars as have come from generals and been observed in cures.

Repertorising

By Margaret Tyler and John Weir

(With very ample apologies to Dr. Gibson Miller, Dr. J.T. Kent and DR. SAMUEL HAHNEMANN)

Every Art and every Science has its own jargon, and the art of Repertorising is no exception. Let us get straight to terms.

Success in Repertorising depends on ability to deal with symptoms ; and this has to be taught ; it is not innate. People all the world over are wasting their lives, working out cases at enormous expenditure of time and minutest care, for comparatively poor results : and all for want of a little initial help. The key to the enigma, which they lack, is the GRADING OF SYMPTOMS... The grading of symptoms in such-wise as to economise labour without compromising results ; and, in the cases where all the more-or-less-indicated remedies lack some symptom or other of the totality, to know which symptoms are of vital importance to the correct prescription ; and which are of less importance, and may therefore probably be neglected ; and also which may be safely used as eliminating symptoms, to throw out remedies by the dozen from the very start ; and which cannot be safely used to throw out any remedies at all, on pain of perhaps losing the very drug one is in search of - the curative simillimum.

To begin with, symptoms are of two orders : (a) those general to the patient as a whole (Kent's GENERALS), and (b) those particular, not to the patient as a whole, but to some part of him (Kent's PARTICULARS).

THE GRADING OF SYMPTOMS

Among the Generals, the symptoms of the first grade are, if well marked, the MENTAL SYMPTOMS. These take the highest rank ; and a strongly marked mental symptom will always rule out any number of poorly-marked symptoms of lesser grade. (For these may never have appeared in the drug-pathogenesis - perhaps for lack of a sufficiently drastic proving ; and yet, time and again, the drug will clear them up). The Mental symptoms, always provide that they are very definite and well-marked, are the most important symptoms of the case.

But for the mental symptoms particularly, it is well to go constantly through the Repertory (Mind-section), and to master all that is presents ; and to make cross references ; and to be sure that you get the correct rubric ; and often combine two rubrics that practically amount to the same thing, and yet do not give quite the same list of drugs. As, for instance, aversion to company and better alone may not be quite the same thing ; and yet it is often difficult to sort them. Again, worse in the dark, and fear of darkness are difficult to fix correctly in many cases, while the elements fear of robbers, fear of ghosts - of apparitions, etc., may come in : so here you have at least four rubrics which you may have to combine on pain of missing something. Many of the rubrics must be considered in company, and all with intelligence and some elasticity, or there is great danger of eliminating the very drug you are in search of. And - the better you know your Repertory, the more rapid your work will be, and the better your results. Never grudge turning its pages !

Second in grade, after the mental symptoms, and his reactions to mental environment, come, if well marked, such general symptoms of the patient as his reactions, as a whole, to bodily environment : - to times and seasons, to heat and cold, to damp and dry, to storm and tempest, to position, pressure, motion, jar, touch, etc. But they have got to be in capitals or in italics in the patient as well as in the Repertory, to take this rank ; or to be safely used, some of them, as eliminating symptoms. ("Some of them", because there are perhaps only half-a-dozen symptoms which it is at all safe to use in this way ; and then only, of course, if strongly marked).

And, once again, be sure that you have your very rubric ; and if necessary combine two rubrics that work out practically as synonyms, and yet do not present quite the same list of drugs. A doctor was driven to despair over a case of melancholia by using better for open air instead of desire for open air. The symptom was so intensely marked that it was used without hesitation as an eliminating symptom, ruling out Sulphur (which has desire for open air), but which had every other big symptom of the case in capitals and which promptly cured. You have got to know your Repertory from cover to cover, if you are to have the best results : and you have got to use it with brains and imagination.

The third-grade General symptoms are the CRAVINGS AND AVERSIONS. But to be elevated to such rank, they must not be mere likes and dislikes, but longings and loathings : in big types in the Repertory, and in the patient - in corresponding types, anyhow !

In corresponding types everywhere and all through : and this is most important. As, for instance, if your patient is only a little restless, Ars. and Rhus., superlatively restless remedies, will, of course, be rather contra-indicated. Big types in the Repertory will never help you, unless the symptoms are big type in the patient too. In first taking the case, it is well to vary the type as you set down the symptoms ; to put those poorly marked in brackets, and to underline the intensely marked symptoms : for that will help you to match them correctly.

Then next in importance comes, in women, the MENSTRUAL STATE, i.e., general aggravation of symptoms before, during and after the menses. Of lower rank comes the question of menses early, late, and excessive - and this last of course only where there is nothing such a polypus, fibroid, menopause, to account for it.

And now, at last, you come to the PARTICULARS - the symptoms that bulk so largely for the patient, and for which he is as a matter of fact, actually consulting you. You will have taken them down first, with the utmost care and detail, listening to his story, and interrupting as little as possible ; but you will consider them last : for these symptoms are really of minor importance from your point of view (certainly in chronic cases) because they are general to the patient as a living whole, but only particulars to some part of him. In a great railway system, for instance, a strike that raises the price of fuel for a few weeks, an accident on the line that means compensation to the repair of few yards of permanent way, are less vital to the Company than the brain quality of its General Manager, of the force, competence and activity of the Chairman and Board of Directors. Make the executive of the Company efficient, and it will deal in the best way with details. In like manner, put your patient, as a whole, in order, and he will straighten out the disorder of his parts. You have got to get at him ; and you can only get at him through his general and mental symptoms. Start for the Particulars, and see where they land you ! In the body politic, where the executive is not sound, you deal with lax discipline here, with speculation there, with incompetence, and disorder, and slackness, and inefficiency. There is rottenness at the core ; and you will find that as fast as you clear up one mess ; the system breaks down at a new part. Go for the Management ; put that right ; and let it act. So with your work : - start treating an eczema, perse, and "cure" it, to find yourself confronted with - say asthma ; prescribe for that, and the wretched patient comes back presently with a brand-new disease - Rheumatism : tinker with that - and the heart gives out. Go for the executive - for the patient himself ; - the patient who was all along capable of eczema - asthma - rheumatism : go for the patient as a live entity, revealed by his general and mental symptoms in chief ; deal with him according to the Law of Similars, and he will do the rest. Always provided that the thing has not gone too far, that the tissue changes are not too gross, he will even undo the rest, step by step backwards, to the reproduction of the initial lesion on the skin. The whole is greater than its part. Never juggle with "Particulars" at the expense of the life of the whole.

But, in their right position of secondary importance, you must go into the particulars all the same, and with great care (if only to confirm your choice of the drug) ; and it will amaze you to find how they fall into line, when the choice is correct. More than that, when the drug has been chosen on general grounds, the patient will return and tell you, not only "I'm better", and that the trouble for which he consulted you is better, but he will volunteer, "My knees are better too, all the swelling has gone" ; and referring to your notes you discover that you had never heard of his knees before ! and he will go on and tell you that his back (of which you hear now for the first time) is much less painful : and the constipation, which he had not previously mentioned, is a thing of the pasts. (This was a Nitric acid case !).

Among the PARTICULARS, your first-grade symptoms will always be anything peculiar, or unusual, or unexpected, or unaccountable. You now want to know not only how your patient, as a whole, reacts to environment, but how his head, his stomach, his lungs, his muscles and joints stand heat and cold, damp weather and dry, react to stuffy atmosphere or draughts, desire or resent movement and jar. You will find one headache being banged against the wall ; while another has to be nursed with such extreme care that the sufferer dare not move a finger, and would swear, if the movement of his lips were not agony, when you clumsily lurch against his bed. Or another headache will demand a bolt-upright position ; while for a fourth the only thing is to kneel up, while it is pressed low into the pillow, or against the floor.

Now, to get the terms clearly... A GENERAL SYMPTOM, OR A GENERAL, IS ONE THAT REFERS TO THE PATIENT HIMSELF, AS A WHOLE, AND OF WHICH HE CAN SAY "I", instead of "My". "I feel the cold frightfully : " "I dare not move hand or foot in a thunderstorm ; and I simply couldn't be alone." "This heat is knocking me all to pieces - I just can't stand it !" - these are Generals. In these the patient expresses himself. Remember, he is the sum of many lives, building up many tissues, and organs of diverse function. Through the Generals the Dweller-in-the-House speaks - through the Mentals and Generals : - the Life which is the sum of the lives, and something beyond that : - the Life "in which they live and move and have their being" ; and with whom, whatever their individual life and vigour, they perish. Truly the whole is greater than its part. Surely it is scientific to deal with the whole first, as a Whole ?

But where your patient says "My" instead of "I", there you have a Particular. "My headache is awful in the house : the only thing for it is to go out and walk about. It often drives me out of bed at 2 or 3 a.m., to walk the Common for hours." (These are not exaggerated statements : we are giving you, all through, actual words of actual patients ; and the magic drug for the last was Puls.).

But the Generals and the Particulars may not only be quite different, but they may be flatly contradictory in the same patient : so you see how imperative it is to get them clearly, and to know what value to give to each. Arsenicum is worse from cold : Ars. stands in the list of "predominantly cold remedies" in capitals. And yet the headache of Arsenicum is better from cold. Ars. has been described as only comfortable when "rolled in blankets up to his chin, with his head out of the window." Lycopodium is a warm remedy in the main, and often cannot stand heat : yet his stomach symptoms, which are a great feature of the drug, are ameliorated by hot food and drinks. Of these the patient says not "I", but "My", therefore they are particulars. He may say, "I cannot stand heat", (a General of the highest importance, and one of the most safe and useful of eliminating symptoms - if strongly marked !) - "I cannot stand heat, but my indigestion" (a particular of the greatest importance to the patient, and on which he lays the greatest stress) "is better for hot food and drinks. Cold things always disagree with me", (meaning his stomach). Again, Phosphorus stands in capitals as a very cold person -

If you are to be a good prescriber, by the way, your drugs have got to be people for you, with whims, fancies and terrors ; with tempers and idiosyncrasies and characteristics : you have got to see them stalking about the world, speaking and moving and halting, with the bodies-minds-souls of men. You have got to travel with them in tram or train, and they will betray themselves, buttoned up and shrinking together, or loose and jolly and open ; fidgety, restless, fearful ; dull and inert ; quarrelling for an open window, growing at the draught with windows closed. You have got to dine with them, and they will reveal themselves in their relation to food and drink, and in the mental revelations such convivial moments of relaxation call forth. You may spot them, standing for preference, or sinking always into the nearest seat ; stoop shouldered and drooping, or erect and full of "go" ; depressed and querulous ; restless and anxious, as their deeply lined faces testify ; smooth and smug ; dirty complexioned and careless of appearance ; chalky faced and flabby of superlative tissue : compact and hard as nails ; fault-finding - affectionate and mild - responsive to every wave of sentiment and emotion - dull and indifferent. Look for them everywhere, and learn them, and they will betray themselves at every turn ; and you will often save yourselves hours of solid work, by spotting them as they enter your consulting room.

So, to hark back... Phosphorus is a very cold person, but his stomach is better for cold drinks. When that is sick he craves for cold water, which is vomited, however, so soon as it gets warm in the stomach. This is a particular, true, but a priceless one, because it is peculiar to Phosphorus. And here we have a new term - a "PECULIAR" symptom, strongly diagnostic of one drug. These peculiar symptoms are especially useful in acute diseases where you are more likely to meet them, and where they often provide a brilliant short-cut to the drug, saving time and toil.

And see how these peculiar unaccountable, contradictory symptoms help you - how unexpected they are, and how diagnostic ! here you have the superlatively chilly Phosphorus : and yet his pains are often of the most intensely-burning description : and though, as a whole, he cannot tolerate cold, yet his sick stomach craves for icy drinks, which it cannot even retain when they get warm ! Take your Generals and Particulars mixed-up and awry and just-anyhow, and you might land in giving such a patient Lycopodium ; for both are worse for heat, and worse for cold ; only the Generals and Particulars are exactly reversed ! For Lycopodium is in the main, intolerant of heat, which his stomach craves ; while Phosphorus detests the cold which his sick stomach demands with vehemence. See how all-important it is to get your Generals and Particulars right ! This is where we fail, and blame Homœopathy.

Then, besides Kent's Generals and Particulars, you have COMMON SYMPTOMS. A symptom may be common to all cases of a certain disease, and therefore of no great use in picking out the individual remedy for a particular case of that disease ; or it may be common to a very great number of drugs, and therefore indicate one of a large group of remedies only ; and so of very little use in repertorising. Take thirst, a general symptom of the patient, though in the Repertory relegated to the section "Stomach" : - "I'm terribly thirsty." If there is nothing to account for the thirst, it may be an important symptom ; though common to a great number of drugs ! But if the patient is running a high temperature, or suffering from diabetes, or if his work keeps him in the heat of a bakehouse or an engine-room, or if the weather is suddenly and unusually hot, the symptom becomes a Common symptom, and almost valueless. Don't waste life in writing down that awful list of remedies "Thirsty". Absence of thirst under conditions where you would expect it, on the contrary, becomes a very important symptom, as absence of thirst with a very high temperature - Kent has a rubric for that. Remember - THE MORE UNCOMMON A SYMPTOM IS, THE MORE VALUABLE : THE LESS YOU CAN ACCOUNT FOR A SYMPTOM AND THE MORE INTENSELY PERSONAL IT IS, THE MORE IMPORTANT. In inflammation, for instance, worse from pressure is what one would expect, and of little value - so many drugs and most inflammations have it ! But better from pressure, under these circumstances, is priceless, and leads you to a small group of drugs, such as Bryonia. Frequent micturition with a fibroid impacted in the pelvis is not a symptom that will help you in working out your case ; it is a Common symptom and amply accounted for... and this leads one to insist on the absolute necessity for correct diagnosis before you even open your Repertory. Remember, the priceless symptoms for success are the strange, the rare, the unaccountable ones ; those that flatly contradict preconceived ideas, and head off straight for a limited number of drugs.

"ELIMINATING" SYMPTOMS

This is a new word, but expresses what we all desire in repertorising, and what we have got to be very chary of using too rigidly, lest we lose the remedy we are looking for.

Instances best reveal meanings. Take one. Say your patient complains of dyspepsia, with burning pain in the stomach, and the frequent vomiting of sour fluid. He pours you out particulars, which he has at his finger-tips ; since they are just the symptoms that impress a man's memory, by intruding themselves on his consciousness in a very realistic way. You jot them down till you have got the case as fully as most people go, with all its modalities (i.e. the conditions as to heat and cold, movement and rest, position, hours of day and night, relation to food and drink, etc., of the stomach condition complained of). You have assured yourself, by careful examination, as to whether the trouble is likely to be organic or functional ; or whether some of the symptoms have got to be discounted, as secondary to some gross lesion. And now it is your turn. You have to elicit the general symptoms of your patient ; you have got to switch him off the siding "my", and on to the main line "I". And you now find that he cannot stand heat - whatever his stomach may do ; that he is ill if long out in the sun : that he wants a cool room, prefers cold weather and a cold climate : that he never goes near the fire : and you noticed when he came in that, though the weather was cold, he was not buttoned up, or thickly clothed. It is not closeness or stuffiness so much that affects him (you have got to be careful between these!) but heat. He is one of Dr. G. Miller's "predominantly hot-remedy people". There is an eliminating symptom for you ! You know at once, whatever his stomach condition may be (its particular symptoms might perhaps be equally well-met by Ars., Phos., Nux, Lyc., Nat-mur., or a host of others) ; but with that temperament, that warm personality, it would be useless for deep and curative work to think of giving him Ars., Phos., Nux or Sep. He is a hot patient, and these are predominantly cold remedies. You can strike them out at once. For even if one of them, aptly fitting the exact stomach symptoms only, gave temporary relief to the immediate condition, the patient would relapse again and again. It could not hold. It would act as a palliative, not a curative drug. It might provide a temporary organ-stimulus : it could never be the stimulus of the organism. And here you see well the difference between deep and superficial work - between curative and palliative. The people who get their honest triumphs in similars, and see at least brilliant temporary results in superficial and acute conditions, and believe honestly that these are the very best attainable by medicine, scout the idea of the lasting triumphs of the simillimum. They know well, from years of experience, their own limitations ; and it seems to them outrageous that other people should make larger claims. As a matter of fact, when you get the real simillimum, the odds are that, instead of palliating the stomach condition, you will aggravate it a thousandfold - for the moment ; aggravate it, once and for all, to cure. And if you do not know your work, you will think that you have got the wrong medicine and antidote or change it ; and your patient will be, so far as you are concerned, incurable. But it may be your ignorance only that makes him so !

So now, down all the rubrics, mental, general, and particular, you will carry that great eliminating symptom, WORSE FROM HEAT, and ruthlessly cut out all the remedies that are chilly, and therefore deeply help chilly people. None of these you need write down at all. Using Dr. G. Miller's list, which we will give in a moment, you can go on to any other General, and especially to any marked mental symptom, and often get a pretty correct idea of the exact remedy before you ever start to tackle the particular and immediate suffering for which the patient comes to you. Now supposing you discover that he is liable to fits of depression, and yet cannot endure any attempt at consolation ; that he becomes a very fiend if anyone attempts to cheer him up - even to enquire what is amiss : the people have learnt to let him severely alone, when his moods are upon him ; why, with these two important symptoms alone, worse from heat, and worse from consolation, which have got to be in equal type, remember, in the patient and in the drug, you have reduced your area of search to Lil-tig., Nat-mur., and Plat. (for Lyc. and Merc. come through the "< consolation test" in the lowest type only, which is hardly good enough for such a marked loathing of consolation as this !) Or, if your patient had been as predominantly chilly and worse for cold as this one was for heat, and the aggravation from consolation test came out as strongly, you would have found yourself at the start of your work with Ars., Bell., Calc-ph., Ign., Nit-ac., Sep. and Sil., with two or three others to play with in brackets - lowest type. If you can get such marked eliminating symptoms to begin with, see what a comparatively small number of drugs you have to carry down through all the rubrics, and how much easier and quicker it is to get your remedy, and how much greater confidence you have in the result of your search. You will generally find, as you work down, that one drug stands out more and more pre-eminently : - it may not be in all the rubrics, but it has got to be in all the important ones, i.e., those best marked in the patient, and of highest grade. And presently you throw down your pen : you are convinced ; and it is a mere waste of time to go further.

Now take the same case and start, instead, on the marked symptoms complained of by the patient - the Particulars, and just see what work you have cut out for you ! Begin with the rubric Vomiting, and write it out for the last time, and see what it entails. And write all the drugs, in all the types, lest you should miss any. Take his particular symptoms, one by one, and write, and write, and write.

Vomiting, 162 drugs.

Vomiting water, 108 drugs.

Vomiting sour, 89 drugs.

Burning pain in the stomach, 186 drugs.

Pain in the stomach p.c., 110 drugs, etc.

It may be easily such a list, of which this is but the merest beginning : - no wonder that people get "Repertory funk !" - for remember that people are actually doing this, at this moment, in all quarters of the world : for they are sending us their beautifully-neat, conscientious and exhaustive work to show, as they ask for a better way : and it is their cry for help that has caused this article to be compiled. Sheets and sheets of paper you will cover. One that lies before us now has all the drugs in forty-nine different rubrics, some of immense length, as Stools offensive, Burning urine, Stools pasty, Yellow stools. Why, before you ever come down to such symptoms, you should have three or four drugs only in hand : - and they are symptoms of the lowest grade, and Common symptoms ; hardly worth glancing through for confirmation of the drug. Moreover, there is the possibility that you may accidentally omit the very drug you want from some of the long lists you are so slavishly copying : and the odds are, that when they are all complete, without the aid of eliminating symptoms some half-a-dozen drugs will come out pretty near one another when you count up at the end, and that your travaux d'Hercule will leave you unconvinced and still in doubt.

Hot and cold remedies

DR. GIBSON MILLER'S HOT AND COLD REMEDIES

(Extracted from Dr. Kent's Works, etc.)

REMEDIES PREDOMINANTLY AGGRAVATED BY COLD

Abrot., Acet-ac., Acon., Agar., Agn., Alumen, Alum., Al-ph., Alum-sil., Am-c., Apoc., Arg-m., ARS., Ars-s-fl., Asar., Aur., Aur-ars., Aur-sulph., Bad., BAR-C., Bar-m., Bell., Benz-ac., Borax., Brom., Cadm., Calc-ars., CAL-C., Calc-fl., CALC-PH., Calc-sil., Camph., Canth., CAPS., Carb-an., Carb-veg., Carbn-sul., Card-m., Cauloph., CAUST., Cham., Chel., CHINA., Chin-a., Cimic., Cistus., Cocc., Coff., Colch., Con., Cycl., DULC., Euphras., FERR., Ferr-ars., Form., GRAPH., Guaj., Hell., Helon., HEP., Hyosc., HYPER., Ign., KALI-ARS., Kali-bich., KALI-CARB., Kali-chlor., Kali-phos., Kali-sil., Kalm., Kreos., Lac-defl., MAGN-CARB., MAGN-PHOS., Mang., MOSCH., Mur-ac., Natr-ars., Natr-carb., NITRIC-AC., Nux-m., NUX-VOM., Oxal-ac., Petrol., PHOS., Phos-ac., Plb., Pod., PSOR., PYROGEN., RAN-B., Rheum., Rhodo., RHUS., RUMEX, Ruta, SABAD., Sars., SEPIA, SIL., SPIG., Stann., Staph., Stram., STRONT., Sul-ac., Therid., Valer., Viol-t., Zinc.

REMEDIES PREDOMINANTLY AGGRAVATED BY HEAT

Aesc-h., All-c., Aloe, Ambra., APIS, ARG-NIT., Asaf., Aur-iod., Aur-m., Bar-iod., Bry., Calad., Calc-iod., Calc-sul., Cocc-cacti., Comoc., Crocus., Dros., Fer-iod., FLUOR-AC., Grat., Ham., IOD., KALI-IOD., KALI-SUL., Lach., Led., Lil-t., Lyc., NAT-MUR., NAT-SUL., Niccol., Op., Picric-ac., PLAT., Ptelia, PULS., SABINA, SECALE, Spong., Sul., Sul-iod., Thuji., Tuberc., (Rabe), Ustil., Vespa., Viburn.

REMEDIES SENSITIVE TO BOTH EXTREMES OF TEMPERATURE

MERC., Ip., Nat-carb., Cinnabar.

Ant-cr., agg. by both heat and cold : agg. by overheating and radiated heat, though many symptoms amel. by heat.

(MERC. in chronic troubles agg. by cold : in acute agg. by heat).

SOME CASES TO SHOW THE METHOD OF WORKING

CASE I

Miss B., æt. 52. Been heavy tea drinker for twenty years ; had much pain and discomfort in stomach ; with flatulence immediately after eating ; gradually got better till next meal ; much rumbling in abdomen. Appetite poor ; bowels fairly regular.

Desires - Salt, sweets.

Averse - Fats, acids.

Flushes of heat with sweating which relieved her.

She was very thin ; excitable person - a bundle of nerves.

On further enquiry she was found to be very chilly.

GENERALS

Very Chilly. < Spring. < Before and during thunder-storm.

Irritable in morning.

Anxiety for others.

Fears, Burglars ; something going to happen ; crowds ; being suffocated, and therefore in tunnel.

Impatient.

Suspicious.

Very sensitive ; readily offended ; startled easily with least noise.

CHILLY PATIENT - Used as Eliminating Symptom : only chilly remedies are given in the following lists.

Fears : Something will happen (Kent's Repertory : p. 45). - Alum., Ars., Calc., Carb-v., CAUST., Graph., Kali-ars., Kali-p., Mag-c., Mang., Nat-a., PHOS.

Fears : suffocation (p. 47) - Carb-an., Phos., Stram..

Fears : crowd (p. 43) - Aloe, Ars., Bar-c., Calc., Carb-an., Caust., Con., Ferr., Graph., Hep., Kali-ar., K-bi., Kali-c., Kali-p., Nat-a., Nat-c., Nux-v., Phos., Plb., Rhus-t., Stann.

Anxiety for others (p. 7) - Ars., Bar-c., Cocc., Phos.

Suspicious (p. 85) - ARS., Aur., BAR-C., Bar-m., Bell., Bor., Calc-p., Carb-s., Canth., CAUST., Cham., Chin., Cimic., Cocc., Con., Graph., Hyos., KALI-ARS., Kali-p., Mur-ac., Nat-a., Nat-c., Nit-ac., Nux-v., Phos., Plb., RHUS-T., Ruta, Sep., Sil., Stann., Staph., STRAM., Sul-ac., Viol-t.

Offended readily (p. 69) - Agar., Alum., Ars., Aur., Bor., Calc., Camph., Caps., Carb-s., Carb-v., Caust., Cham., Chel., Chin., Chin-a., Cocc., Cycl., Graph., NUX-V., Petr., Phos., Ran-b., Sars., Sep., Spig., Stram., Zinc.

< Approach storm (p. 1403) - Agar., Aur., Caust., Hyper., Kali-bi., Nat-c., Nit-ac., Petr., Phos., PSOR., RHOD., Rhus-t., Sep., Sil.

< Spring (p. 1403) - Aur., Bar-m., Bell., Calc., Carb-v., Chel., Colch., Dulc., Hep., Kali-bi., Nux-v., Rhus-t., Sars., Sep., Sil.

Averse fats (p. 480) - Ars., Bell., Calc., Carb-an., Carb-v., CHIN., Chin-a., Colch., Cycl., Bell., Hep., Nat-c., PETR., Phos., Rheum, Rhus-t., Sep.

Averse acids (p. 480) - Bell., Cocc., Ferr., Ign., Nux-v., Ph-ac., SABAD.

Desire salt (p. 486) - Calc., Calc-p., CARB-V., Caust., Cocc., Con., Nit-ac., PHOS., Plb.

Desire sweets (p. 486) - Am-c., Arg-m., Ars., Bar-c., Calc., Carb-v., CHIN., Chin-a., Kali-ars., Kali-c., Kali-p., Nat-c., Nux-v., Petr., Plb., Rheum., Rhus-t., Sabad., Sep.

Remarks. The chief remedies running through the case are Ars., Calc., Caust., Nat-c., Nux-v., Phos., Rhus., Sep. Giving the different types their values ; (Capitals = 3 ; Italics = 2 ; Ordinary = 1) ; we find that Ars. appears 8 times to value of 16 = Ars. 816 , Calc. 814, Caust. 713, Nat-c. 69, Nux-v. 69, Phos. 1018, Rhus-t. 712, Sep. 611.

The constitution of the patient suggested either Ars. or Phos.

We have thus come to these two remedies by only considering the general symptom of the patient.

The pain in stomach was > hot drinks ; even wine which suits her generally had to be given up owing to its coldness, and as Phos. patients crave cold drinks (even ices) in gastric troubles, we are left with Ars.

Ars-alb. 30 - 3 doses at 6-hourly intervals.

Pain > (which had been present for years) in a few days, and in a few weeks she was almost well, being much less excitable.

This case shows the importance of Generals in their order - mental, climatic, desires and aversions in food ; all of which must be markedly present to be of any value.

CASE II

Mrs. W., æ. 58 - Dec. 6th, 1910 - Complaining of headaches ever since a girl in her teens ; usually requires to go to bed for at least two days every month (not at period). She has a heaviness all over head as if in iron case ; and head extremely tender to touch, also much throbbing in left temple.

< Warm room ; exposure to sun ; if heated ; east wind ; touch.

> Rest ; alone ; quiet ; lying down ; pressure.

Menopause, two years ago. Has some bearing down sensation if she strains, with burning internally and a feeling of distension.

Stomach - Appetite fair ; averse fish ; desires fats.

Bowels constipated.

GENERALS

Mental - Fears : dark, robbers. Always in a hurry. Very sensitive to all impressions. Moody : < consolation (gets angry).

Climatic. - < Warmth (faintish ; summer - exposure to sun. Flushes, heat with sweats. < Thunder (hair stands on end, and gets bad headaches).

WARM PATIENT - Therefore following lists only include those drugs affected by heat.

< Consolation (Kent, p. 16) - Lil-t., Lyc., NAT-M., Plat., Thuj.

Fear dark (p. 43) - Calc-s., Lyc., Puls.

Robbers (p. 47) - Arg-n., Lach., Nat-m., Sulph.

Hurry (p. 52) - Aloe, Ambr., Apis, Arg-n., Bry., Calad., Calc-s., Grat., Iod., Kali-s., Lach., LIL-T., Lyc., NAT-M., Op., Ptel., Puls., SULPH., Thuj.

< Thunder (p. 1403) - Bry., Lach., Lyc., Nat-m., Puls., Sulph., Thuj., Tub.

< Summer (p. 1404) - Arg-n., Bry., FL-AC., Iod., Lach., Lyc., Nat-m., Puls., Thuj.

Faintish warm room (p. 1361) - Lach., Lil-t., Lyc., PULS.

Faintish crowded room (p. 1359) - Nat-m., Sulph.

Averse fish (p. 480) - Nat-m., Sulph.

Desire fats (p. 485) - Sulph.

Particulars of Headache

< Sun (p. 149) - Aloe, BRY., LACH., Nat-m., PULS., Sulph.

< Warm room (p. 151) - Aloe, APIS, Bry., Coc-c., Croc., Ferr-i., Iod., Kali-s., Led., Lil-t. Lyc., Nat-m., PLAT., PULS., Spong., Sulph.

< Touch (p. 149) - Bry., Grat., Led., Lyc., Nat-m., Sabin.

> Lying (p. 142) - Bry., Calc-s., Coc-c., Fer-i., Fl-ac., Lach., Lyc., Nat-m., Spong., Sulph.

> Pressure (p. 145) - Apis, Arg-n., BRY., LACH., Lil-t., Lyc., NAT-M., Nicc., PULS., Sabin., Sulph., Thuj.

Bry. 814 ; Lach. 817 ; Lyc. 1015 ; Nat-m. 1222 ; Puls. 819 ; Sulph. 1016 .

Remarks. Nat-mur. seems to suit the case, not because it is numerically highest alone, but because it corresponds to the type of the patient. Nat-mur. has marked aversion to fats, which this patient desires : but that would not rule out the drug for this reason ; that, though the desires and aversions are general symptoms, they rank much lower in the scale than the mental symptoms. A strong mental symptom like the markedly < consolation would rule out many of lesser importance. Puls. again could never suit this case, no matter how great its numerical value, because of the marked < from consolation. Repertory work is never mechanical, and is only a guide to the study of Materia Medica.

Dec. 9th, 1910 - Natrum-mur. 200, 3 doses.

Dec. 15th, 1910 - A marked aggravation of the headache three days after taking the powders.

February 14th, 1911 - Not had a bad headache since ; no heaviness or caged-in feeling. Bowels began to act naturally soon after the medicine. Hardly any flushes of heat. Much better generally ; got up after influenza and not felt shaky, used to take her weeks to recover. No medicine.

February 20th, 1911 - Got bad colic due to chill which caused return of headache for one day only. Natrum-mur. 200, 3 doses.

April 7th, 1911 - No real headache since last note, slight attempts ; no caged-in feeling. Bowels quite regular. Bearing down with burning and distension entirely gone. No flushes of heat. No medicine.

May 16th, 1911 - A little vertigo on first lying down : goes off immediately. Headache absent despite severe thunderstorm which formerly caused her to go to bed ; not once the cased-in sensation. Bowels still good.

Generally a different person in every way ; brighter ; more cheerful ; husband declares her to be a different person to live with. Nat-m. 200, 3 doses.

December 27th, 1911 - May have had a slight attempt at headache, but never came to anything ; feels a new creature ; able to do much more work ; very energetic ; general health excellent. Had no medicine since above.

CASE III

Miss C. æt. 35 - June 13th, 1910 - Sleepless since 20 years age ; brought on by excessive musical study ; never taken any sleeping drugs. She lies quite wide awake at night, brain active all the time, especially after lights are out. Often kept awake by persistent tunes ; hardly ever falls asleep for three hours after going to bed ; readily wakened by the least gleam of light : even if drowsy becomes sleepless immediately on getting into bed. Dreams always ; nightmare.

General health has been good. Throat : painless hoarseness : all colds fly here.

Stomach : Appetite good. Averse fats, milk. Craves ices, cold food. Emptiness without hunger soon after getting into bed which might prevent sleep. > Eating. Emptiness at 11 a.m.

M. P. normal.

Mental : Very excitable to music : irritable ; impatient ; discontented. Fears : in a crowd ; being hemmed in ; fire ; suffocation. Indifferent to people, especially relatives. Depressed easily.

Chilly : Hates the cold ; < thunderstorms.

CHILLY, used as an "eliminating symptom" to cut all the warm remedies, in all the following lists.

Indifference relations (Kent, p. 55) - Hell., Hep., Nat-c., PHOS., SEP.

Fears crowd (p. 43) - Ars., Aur., Bar-c., Calc., Carb-an., Caust., Con., Ferr., Ferr-ars., Graph., Hep., Kali-ar., Kali-bi., Kali-c., Kali-p., Nat-a., Nat-c., Nux-v., Phos., Plb., Rhus-t., Stann.

Fears suffocation (p. 47) - Carb-an., Phos., Stram.

Fears fire (p. 45) - Cupr.

< Thunder (p. 1403) - Agar., Aur., Caust., Hyper., Kali-bi., Nat-c., Nit-ac., Petr., Phos., PSOR., RHOD., Rhus-t., Sep., Sil.

Averse fats (p. 480) - Ars., Bell., Calc., Carb-an., Carb-v., CHIN., Chin-a., Colch., Cycl., Hell., Hep., Nat-c., PETR., Phos., Rheum, Rhus-t., Sep.

Averse milk (p. 481) - Am-c., Bell., Calc., Carb-v., Guaj., Ign., LAC-D., Mag-c., NAT-C., Nux-v., Phos., Rheum, Sep., Sil.

Desires cold food (p. 484) - Am-c., PHOS., Sil., Zinc.

Desires ices (p. 485) - Calc., PHOS.

Emptiness 11 a.m. (p. 488) - Alumen, Nat-c., Phos., Sep., Zinc.

Emptiness without hunger (p. 489) - Agar., Alum., Ars., Bar-c., Chin., Cocc., Dulc., Hell., Mur-ac., Phos., Rhus-t., Sil., Sul-ac.

Sleepless after going to bed (p. 1252) - Bor., Carb-v., Mag-c., Phos., Ph-ac.

Same idea (tune) always repeated (p. 1254) - Bar-c., Calc., Coff., Graph., Petr.

Hoarseness, painless (p. 760) - CALC., CARB-V., Caust., Phos.

= Calc. 611 ; Nat-c. 610 ; Phos. 1224 ; Sep. 510.

Remarks. The larger rubrics such as sensitive to noise, impatience, etc., are left out as all the competing remedies are in them.

Phos. not only best indicated, but it has the important peculiar symptoms, - indifference to relations ; all the fears (except fire) ; and the marked craving for ices.

June 16th, 1910 - Phos. 10M. 3 doses, 6 hours apart.

July 4th, 1910 - She writes "been sleeping better and have been much quieter mentally at night." No medicine.

July 27th, 1910 - "Very much better generally ; sleeping better, even with worrying times. Not half so tired as usual ; no emptiness even at 11 a.m. ; not restless mentally at night ; no persistent tunes or thoughts ; not dreaming so much ; extraordinary better." No medicine.

Oct. 10th, 1910 - Abroad, tiring journey, so took Phos. 10M, 3 doses, 6-hourly.

January 27th, 1911 - Been sleeping perfectly well and much better in every way ; no persistent tunes at night ; hardly ever dreams. No medicine.

Jan. 14th, 1912 - "Still sleeping quite well ; have absolutely nothing to complain about." No medicine.

CASE IV

Mr. B. æt. 28 - May 6th, 1910 - Pain and distension abdomen for last three years, especially 6 a.m. or 4 p.m. ; felt like bubble inside ; been taking Sod-bicarb. all the time. Distension, not for some time after eating.

> Escape flatus (offensive) ; > hot drinks. Sleeps well till wakened at 6 a.m. by pain.

Appetite good ; no special desires or aversions ; some heartburn.

Rheumatic pains general ; no special modalities.

Weather conditions do not affect him.

Mental : < In himself if angry. Neither care nor worry. Quick tempered but controls it. Weak concentration.

Lycop. 1M, 4 doses, 6-hourly.

May 19th, 1910 - Not had slightest effect. Gave additional symptoms. Pain especially at 6 a.m. comes in waves or spasms ; has to draw up knees on abdomen, causes him to roll in discomfort.

< If he gets angry. > Coffee.

Gets cramp in arms readily when rowing.

Abdomen

Pain < 6 a.m. (Kent, p. 555) - Coloc., Ox-ac.

< 4 p.m. (p. 555) - Caust., Coloc., Bell., LYC., Mag-m., Phys.

< anger (p. 556) - Cham., Cocc., Coloc., Nux-v., Staph., Sulph.

> coffee (p. 557) - COLOC.

Coloc. 1M, 4 doses, 6-hourly.

May 27th, 1910 - Been practically well last few days. No medicine.

June 3rd, 1910 - "Nothing wrong with me." No medicine.

June 29th, 1910 - Not wakened at 6 a.m. now ; never feels pain at 4 p.m. ; sleeping perfectly ; but some flatulence still about ; no heartburn ; distension hardly present ; rheumatic pains gone. Almost but not quite well. No medicine.

Coloc. 10M, 4 doses, 6-hourly.

June 18th, 1911 - Mother reports that the medicine upset him somewhat at first, but since then and now is perfectly well : not least trouble.

Remarks. We had here nothing but particulars to work with, but they were so definite ; though not obtained till second visit.

Lycop. had the 4 p.m. aggravation, also generally < after anger, and the > escape flatus. We thus see the great difficulty of prescribing on particulars. We had Hering's "three legs to our stool," but that was not enough.

CASE V

A. M., (32). Sept. 30th, 1911 - (An outpatient case). Headache vertex and eye all his life. Getting much worse. Lasts from three days to three weeks. So severe, hardly knows what to do. Worse sleep. Head very tender, can't bear being touched. Sickness last ten hours, and vomits every ten minutes. Always got a headache. Can't eat, therefore very weak.

Feels well before attack.

Good family history ; also general history good. No better for anything. Burrows head in pillow. Eyes good, tested lately. Tongue indented. Feels as if suffocated after eating, which greatly aggravates the headache.

Averse : Fats, milk.

Very sleepy at 8 p.m. Dreams exciting. Alopecia areata.

< Heat ; thunder ; sleep. Depressed < Consolation. Wants to be alone.

Worse heat is used as an eliminating symptom to cut out all the cold remedies from the following lists.

< Consolation (p. 16) - Lyc., Merc., NAT-M., Plat., Thuj.

< Thunder (p. 1403) - Aur., Bry., K-bi., Lach., Lyc., Nat-m., Puls., Sul., Thuj., Tub.

Averse fat (p. 480) - Bry., Merc., Nat-m., PTEL., PULS., Sul.

Averse milk (p. 481) - Bry., Puls., Sul.

Headache < sleep (p. 148) - Arg-n., Aur., Bry., K-bi., LACH., Lyc., Merc., NAT-M., Puls., Sul., Thuj.

= Lach. 25, Lyc. 35, Merc. 34, Nat-m. 49, Puls. 47, Sul. 47, Thuj. 34.

Puls. could never come in, outruled by "< consolation" test, and by look of patient. Leaves Nat-m., and Sul. Aspect typical Nat-mur., Nat-mur. 30, 4 doses 6-hourly.

October 21st - Not been laid up with his headaches for the last three weeks ; and not been sick, but hardly so well in himself. Has had a cold and is heavy and dull. No medicine.

November 11th - One attack threatened but passed off. If they came on before, they always laid him up for a week. He feels stronger, brighter, more heart for things. Sleep less heavy ; dreams the same. Hair the same. No medicine.

December 7th - Had bilious attack on the 3rd inst., but was not sick ; only headache ; same character. No medicine.

January 4th, 1912 - Had four attacks since here, two bad. Same character. Bry. 30, 6 doses, 3-hourly.

Remarks. It is never wise during an acute exacerbation of a chronic malady to prescribe the chronic remedy, as you are apt to increase needlessly the sufferings of your patient. Under such circumstances one prescribes a more superficial remedy corresponding to the immediate modalities : e.g., Bry. in a Nat-mur. case : Bell. in a Calc-c. case, &c.

January 11th - Cannot eat ; though headache. Nat-mur. 200, 4 doses, 6-hourly.

February 1st - Not had an attack since here, despite heavy work, feels very well. No medicine.

February 22nd - Not had a headache for 2 months. Indigestion immediately p.c. Feels better in himself. No medicine.

March 14th - Only a slight headache since here, but was able to stop at work ; and right again. No medicine.

CASE VI

Miss R.G., (20). (Outpatient, Hospital). Feb.15th, 1912 - Pain, back, when she catches cold. Head, burning pain on vertex : > on closing eyes. Feels, sick with headache daily : < at M.P. Cough on and off for four years. Been treated at hospitals or privately all the time ; really never free from cough. No pain : no sputum. Worse heat.

Faintish in warm room. Depressed, consolation. Irritable with noises. Fidgety.

< Heat - (used as eliminating symptom to cut out cold remedies from lists).

< Consolation (Kent, p. 16) - Lil-t., Lyc., NAT-M., Plat., Thuj.

Noises = irritable (p. 59) - Iod., Nat-m., (later addition to Repertory).

Faint in warm room (p. 1361) - Lach., Lil-t., Lyc., PULS.

Faint in crowd (p. 1359) - Nat-m., Sul.

Headache > closing eyes (p. 137) - Aloe, Bry., Iod., Nat-m., Plat., Sul.

Pain, burning vertex (p. 177) - Bry., Lach., Nat-m., Nat-s., Sul.

Pain, burning, vertex at M.P. (p. 177) - Lach., Nat-m., Sul.

= Bry. 24 ; Lach. 36 ; Lyc. 22 ; Nat-m. 611 ; Sul. 47.

Nat-mur. 30, 4 doses, 6-hourly.

March 14th, 1912 - Very much better in herself. Hardly had a headache. No burning vertex. Not the least faintish. Pain in back gone. No cough : never been so free of cough since it began years ago. No medicine.

Of course there are heaps of cases, where you cannot get any mental or other general symptoms so definitely marked as in the foregoing, and where you have got to be most careful not to take symptoms too easily for "eliminating" purposes, or to knock out drugs on insufficient cause. If you do, you will find yourself landed with - Sepia probably, most times : though you might very often do worse.

Times of day, if very definite, help. Some people are perfectly well all day, but their nights are purgatorial. Some are in pain all day long, but perfectly well at night. Some rise feeling miserably ill and tired after a good night's rest, and with nothing to account for it (it is important to ascertain this !) and only feel pretty well as the day wears on, and are bright and happy and ready for work, mental and physical, in the evening, when you might expect them to be tired. Others have all their weariness and languor, all their sufferings, in the evening - after days neither strenuous nor fatiguing. These are important generals, and very useful in helping to determine the drug. Some drugs have their very hour on the face of the clock : and others a very marked periodicity. The worse-in-evening people, by the way, have a talent for working out at Lycopodium.

Worse from damp, and worse from dry weather are deep-seated, and very important : if strongly marked in the patient, they may be used as eliminating symptoms. "I feel ten years younger to-day because it is raining ; all my joints are quite loose, and I can move freely" said a patient a few days ago : while others stiffen and ache for a mere passing shower. There is a small important list, patient better in wet weather which is not in Kent's Repertory* - Alum., Ars., ASAR., Bell., Bov. BRY., Carb-an., Carb-v., CAUST., Cham., Fl-ac., HEP., Ip., Laur., Mang., Med., Mez., Mur-ac., Nit-ac., NUX., Plat., Rhod., Saba., Sep., Sil., Spig., Spong., Staph., Sulph., Zinc. (Rheumatic pain better in wet weather, means practically, Caust., Hep., or Nux-v.). Dr. G. Miller says, "in rheumatism where we expect as a rule to have an agg. from weather changes, its absence becomes peculiar ; where the patient is not affected by change of weather, exclude Dulc., Nux-mos., Phos., Ran-b., Rhodo., Rhus., Sil., Tuberc. And where the patient is not affected by wet weather exclude Calc., Merc., Nat-c., Nat-s., Ruta.

* Dr. Kent points out that this rubric appears in his Repertory as "Dry weather agg." p. 1357, and "Cold dry weather agg." p. 1349.

Then there are patients who never dare to get into a bath, who are obliged to "wash in sections" as one of them expressed it ; since they feel faint, or actually do faint, as soon as the water flows over their skins : while in a lesser degree, others feel miserably weak and ill after a bath. Such symptoms must be very marked and definite to carry great weight or to rule out drugs ; but they help immensely : the last may give the casting vote between Puls. and Sulph.

Last, and least important of all, comes the name of the patient's malady. Look it up, if you like, at the very end, and it may joyfully confirm your choice of drug, which it must not unduly bias. If your patient is an asthmatic patient, it is comforting to know that the drug his symptoms demand has again and again cured bad cases of asthma. But remedies that have never been recorded as having cured asthma will do the trick, if the symptoms of the patient cry out for them, as their simillimum. Drugs have not all been pushed far enough to produce lesions, and their voices do not carry, as a rule, deeper than function - except in the cases of accidental poisoning. But get the right drug, the stimulus needed, and you will find the reaction of the organism deep enough in all conscience, and long-sustained. Then KEEP YOUR HANDS OFF ! Wait long for a second very definite cry, before you dare to interfere. You may have to wait months - then wait ! Remember, it is the patient who has to cure himself ; the drug cannot cure him ; the drug is only the stimulus that starts the vital reaction. So long as curative reaction is in progress, it is senseless - criminal - to interfere. This is the way to crush your work, to vitiate your experience, to break your heart.

So long the patient is improving, let him be, and never meddle till he begins to slip back : that is the first possible moment to repeat, or to reconsider the case. It is safer to be a little late than a little soon. You must "go fast slowly," there is no other way.
